Curriculum

Our center's curriculum is designed to meet the whole needs of the child (physical, social, emotional, cognitive, self-help skills) in accordance with Best Practice guidelines established by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC). Our center also utilizes PA educational standards and outcomes of young children as the foundation for teacher planned and directed in-depth studies and projects.

Age appropriate "learning centers" and learning materials enable children to become personally engaged in their own active learning. Responsive teacher-child interactions and partnerships with families create a quality environment for development and learning, allowing children to begin life with a positive approach to learning.
